In the course of their junior year, all high school juniors are now required to take the CLEP exam for credit. This exam is a college-level math exam that is accepted by many colleges and universities. The exam is designed to be taken by students who are mathematically ready for college-level math courses. If the student is "Conditionally Ready for CSU or participating CCC college-level math courses" then the student is "Conditionally Ready for CSU or participating CCC college-level math courses".

Students who are mathematically ready for college-level math courses can take the exam at the end of their junior year. The exam is a computer-based exam that is taken at a computer workstation. The exam is a 90-minute exam that covers a range of topics including algebra, geometry, and trigonometry. The exam is a multiple-choice exam that is taken at the end of the junior year.
